

Andrew McKellar is the chief executive of the Australian Chamber of Commerce and Industry (ACCI) – the nation's largest business organisation, representing employers of every size and sector in Canberra, across the country, and around the globe.

Under Andrew's leadership, ACCI champions policies that enable businesses to innovate, invest, and grow, promoting Australia's economic strength and international competitiveness.

His current appointments include membership of the board of Australian Made Campaign, the Ministerial Advisory Council on Skilled Migration, the Respect@Work Council, and the World Chambers Federation Council.

Previously, Andrew served as secretary general for mobility at the Federation Internationale de l'Automobile, based in Paris; chief executive of the Australian Trucking Association; chief executive of the Australian Automobile Association; and chief executive of the Federal Chamber of Automotive Industries.

Earlier in his career, Andrew worked in government, serving as a senior adviser to successive federal industry ministers. He also worked in the Department of the Prime Minister and Cabinet, and Commonwealth and Queensland treasuries.

Andrew holds a Bachelor of Economics from the Australian National University.